

INDUSTRIAL REVIEW

A flour mill is planned for Canyon City.

Several cars of Tillamook cheese have been shipped from Tillamook county to eastern points. It is stated that it is the first time in the history of Oregon that Oregon cheese has been shipped in carload lots to eastern states.

Grants Pass held a show to boost for the corn industry. The slogan "Boost for Beets" has been officially adopted as a city slogan, since there is a large sugar beet factory there and hundreds of acres are planted to beets.

Portland will have a $25,000 chewing gum factory.

The Milton-Freewater district has shipped a solid train load of sixteen full carloads of apples to eastern markets. The shipment was 10,700 boxes and averaged $1 per box to the growers.

The Albina Works have secured contracts from the Norwegian firm of A. O. Andersen & Co. for the construction of four vessels. The contract call for the construction of four vessels at an aggregate cost of $2,500,000.

The value of vessels now under construction on the Columbia river is about $25,000,000.

If it sounds good, we are apt to believe it, whether it's so or not.

The Warrenton Clay Company, a capital of $125,000, will soon be ready to manufacture sewer pipe, and building blocks.

The Westport Lumber Company is building some 20 modern cottages for the accommodation of their employees.

The dairymen of South Silverton organized a cheese factory.

The Country Club at Salem will have commodious quarters for its members. A large brick building is being erected on Liberty street, in capital city.

Medford, the Applegate Lumber company will erect a sawmill to cost $150,000.

Following out their idea of permanent improvements, the county commissioners have ordered steel pipes over the irrigation canal at Medford, in Klamath county.

The Willamette Pacific railway spend $25,000 on terminals at Eugene.

The company has been organized at Medford for the erection and operation of a large soap factory.

The Oregon Power Company at Medford has secured a twenty-five year franchise in Eastside for gas electric service.

PORTLAND LIVE STOCK EXPOSITION

December 4 to 9—Railroads Make Special Rates.

The Pacific Live Stock International Exposition will be held this year at the Union Stock Yards, Portland, December 4 to 9. All railroads leading into Portland have made special rates of a fare and a third for this event, and the rates will apply from all stations in the northwest. The selling dates are from November 30 to December 6, good to return until December 12. The show is purely educational and there is no charge for admittance. The Mist is asked my the manager, O. M. Plummer, to extend to the citizens of Columbia county a cordial invitation to attend.

COLUMBIA RIVER LOG MARKET

The yellow fir market at Portland shows firmness over thirty days ago, being $5.50, $8.50 and $11.50 on grade, and in some cases 50 cents more is being paid; red fir, $8.25 to $8.50. Cedar shows strength at $10.50 and $11. Spruce logs are still at $12, with some buyers paying a little more for special raft.

IMPROVE GRAYS HARBOR ENTRANCE

The bar dredge, Col. P. S. Michie already has been able to make a decided improvement in the channel across the Grays Harbor bar, although she has been working less than a week. Her work also has been aided by the increased "scour" of the high winter tides and fresher water.

Soundings show a depth now of 19 feet in the channel at low tide, giving about 27 to 28 feet at high tide. This is a deepening of at least two feet and is sufficient to make navigation across the bar safe. The dredge, since coming to the harbor, has been favored by fair weather.

You can't land big fish with a pin hook, nor big customers with a pin head.

SHINGLE MARKET

There has been but little change in the shingle situation of the Columbia river district during the past thirty days. Owing to the car shortage future business is not being booked at any set price. Prices as a rule are now being made when the cars are actually on hand. Cedar is fairly plentiful at $10 to $10.50. Rile-Grade Stars were quoted thirty days ago at $1.35 on 30-cent rate; $1.90 on 31 to 35-cent rate; $1.85 on 55-cent rate. Some sales are reported this month at slightly higher figures.
